MEMORIAL PARK

of

The University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio
Established January 25, 1996

This portion of the campus has been set aside as the final resting place of the cremated remains of persons who have donated their bodies for the furtherance of medical knowledge. It is in testimony to and in gratitude for the generous gifts of these selfless friends that this memorial park is dedicated. Through their benevolence and foresight, they have provided a unique and essential resource in the training of health care professionals. Both the University and a multitude of unknown beneficiaries in this and in future generations, who will enjoy enhanced health and longevity through the efforts of students of the health sciences whom these bodies have helped to train, owe these donors a debt of gratitude.

Enter this place of solitude to find refuge from surrounding distractions and experience restoration of spirit. Contemplate the timeless value of the altruistic acts of those who have donated their bodies for scientific study. Join with others who honor our benefactors, in whose memory this park is consecrated.
